

WIKIMEDIA AUSTRALIA

Galleries, Libraries, Archives, Museums & Wikimedia: Finding the common ground

6-7 August 2009 Australian War Memorial Canberra

A two way dialogue between Australasian cultural institutions and representatives from the Wikimedia community to determine how to use each other's strengths to mutual advantage.

Consisting of keynote presentations and workshops covering:

- Education - how to enhance outreach activities.
- Technology - collaboration in practice.
- Business - models for profitable collaboration.
- Law - copyright, access & non-commercial usage.

Keynote presentations from:

- Senator Kate Lundy, Senator for the ACT
- Jennifer Riggs, Chief Program Officer - Wikimedia Foundation.

Other presenters include:

- Seb Chan and Paula Bray
- Graham Greenleaf and Jessica Coates
- Delia Browne and Angelina Russo
- with special video presentations from international GLAM sector directors.

Visit glam.wikimedia.org.au for more information.

Wikimedia projects are the largest, most consulted, most accessible and most easily improved information source available. However, the success of the projects depends on the availability of good primary and secondary sources (including multimedia and expert knowledge) that can be shared freely. Attendees from both the GLAM sector and Wikimedia community will gain a detailed understanding of the best-practices of the other.

This event will call together representatives from Australian and New Zealand cultural institutions to produce a world first - a consensus for how to interact with Wikimedia projects which can form the basis for similar discussions around the world. Furthermore, it would produce a set of mutually-agreed guidelines for what each community needs in order to make any collaboration more positive and productive. Attendees will be able to bring the particular concerns and circumstances of their institution to the attention of the conference.

WIKIMEDIA AUSTRALIA

Galleries, Libraries, Archives, Museums & Wikimedia: Finding the common ground

6-7 August 2009 Australian War Memorial Canberra

A two way dialogue between Australasian cultural institutions and representatives from the Wikimedia community to determine how to use each other's strengths to mutual advantage.

Consisting of keynote presentations and workshops covering:

- Education - how to enhance outreach activities.
- Technology - collaboration in practice.
- Business - models for profitable collaboration.
- Law - copyright, access & non-commercial usage.

Keynote presentations from:

- Senator Kate Lundy, Senator for the ACT
- Jennifer Riggs, Chief Program Officer - Wikimedia Foundation.

Other presenters include:

- Seb Chan and Paula Bray
- Graham Greenleaf and Jessica Coates
- Delia Browne and Angelina Russo
- with special video presentations from international GLAM sector directors.

Visit glam.wikimedia.org.au for more information.

Wikimedia projects are the largest, most consulted, most accessible and most easily improved information source available. However, the success of the projects depends on the availability of good primary and secondary sources (including multimedia and expert knowledge) that can be shared freely. Attendees from both the GLAM sector and Wikimedia community will gain a detailed understanding of the best-practices of the other.

This event will call together representatives from Australian and New Zealand cultural institutions to produce a world first - a consensus for how to interact with Wikimedia projects which can form the basis for similar discussions around the world. Furthermore, it would produce a set of mutually-agreed guidelines for what each community needs in order to make any collaboration more positive and productive. Attendees will be able to bring the particular concerns and circumstances of their institution to the attention of the conference.

